Dear Sylvia,

Who says times aren't changing?

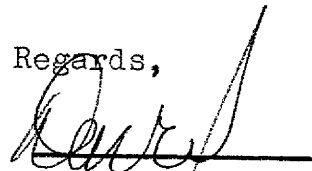

This morning's paper contained one of the nicest reviews I have ever seen re your work. (copy attached).

Also enclosed find a recent L.A. Times interview re Garrison's novel
Note the sentence:

Does this man know something we don't?
Have his years of probing, followed by his public setbacks, forced him into fiction to tell a story he couldn't do with provable fact?

What this reviewer apparently doesn't understand is Garrison's great step forward, from those days back in 1967-9. He is finally bringing his fiction to McGraw-Hill instead of to a jury.

Regards,

David Lifton
