Dear Sylvia —

"Hope springs eternal, etc. ...."

I have been wondering about your opinion of the "Saul theory" — it answered most of the questions and the author's credentials seemed in good order. Nothing else seems too new, however, this book, more than any other, made me confront fully for the first time the futility of getting the whole truth by any other than extraordinary means.

I have never been clear on what Johnson meant or even if it was true that the evidence was sealed for 75 years. What evidence? Oral evidence of what? Can anyone, even the President, withhold evidence for any reason in a murder case?

Why can't a class action — The People of the United States vs. the Government of the United States — be filed to force a final resolution of this question. We owe it to ourselves as a 200th birthday present. I would certainly be willing to contribute to the legal expenses and no doubt many others would be too — it is all too frustrating, isn't it —

As you can see, I have moved again and, among other things, can't find your address.

Hope the U.N. will get it.
Good luck, and good cheer,
Sincerely,
Margaret Simmons

P.S. I heard yesterday that Penn
Jones had out another book (?)
but I have not read it —
