Dear Mrs. Meagher:

Your letter to MIDNIGHT has been forwarded to me.

You have my apology for the second statement. This was totally my error in attributing a quote. That statement regarding the different sights came from John Minnery. I had my file cards in alphabetical order when I was putting together a rather involved manuscript. When I put in the materials I combined that Minnery statement on the same card I had listed with your materials/research. I apologize for my error. By the way, the difference in the two sights may be clearly seen on the photos of the various weapons being removed from the book building (TSBD) and the weapon used by the Warren Commission as the "Oswald rifle." Even to a layman such as me that is evident.

The original story I sent MIDNIGHT was edited, of course, and some of the material was presented in a sidebar fashion. I must add that I did not have the opportunity to check final copy in this case. The final story was not just as I had written it. However, the error in attributing Minnery's statements to you is totally mine and I do apologize.

I am enclosing a couple columns I have written in the cause of uncovering the truth in the Kennedy assassination. I am certain my style, temper and histrionic approach will not please you, but that's ok. I surely am an admirer of your work and tenacity.

By the way, I did attempt to call you and when I was trying to get your number from (212) information they told me your number was not a published number! This still does not excuse my clerical error, however.

Thank you for writing.

Cordially,

J David Truby
