

Belfast
November 22, 1977

Dear Sylvia,

I appreciate your contribution and thank you for it to swell our budget!

Here is No.20 "hot off the presses" and, of course, I hope you enjoy it. If you ever wish to compose us any brief pieces there will always be space for you and I'll be really pleased to include them.

Things are pretty quiet over here at present and its hard to remember that today is the 14th anniversary. How time flies..... Do you think that we are any nearer to the truth?

You will notice a little bit on the latest. Dick Russell article which you kindly sent over. I hope that his book finally makes it as there is so much guff coming out in recent years. By the sound of it Closing in would really set the cat amongst the pigeons. Maybe that is just what is needed to really start the ball rolling?

Chris is sending you the Sunday Mirror series of articles - for what they are worth. The true story is that Part One was as agreed with us, Part Two was written by them (largely as a result of reading Schweiker and Eddowes) and Part Three - the most important - didn't bear the slightest resemblance to what we were told it would appear as! All in all, a big disappointment.

I'll look foward to hearing from you when time permits. In the meantime I'll close with my warm regards.

Henry