

Maggie Field

November 27, 1978

Dear Sylvia:

My apologies for never getting together with you, but it is very difficult still for me to see people - even old friends. Someday, though, maybe I'll feel well enough to be social again. For me to work, I need to be quiet and alone as much as possible. I'm sure you'll understand.

The enclosed photocopies are from a young people's book I copy-edited for Franklin Watts last summer. It's author is a man named Goode and the title is Three Shots That Stunned America. It is a brief account of the assassinations of JFK + Bob Kennedy + Martin Luther King. I thought you'd like to know that your book is mentioned favorably in the text + you are listed in the Bibliography.

Just about a year ago, November 22, 1977, ironically enough, Marjorie Field was in New York and my Aunt Anna was here from Pennsylvania. After Mrs. Field, her daughter, Sempse, + I put Aunt Anna on the bus back home, we came down here ~~to~~ to Sazerac House for lunch. Mrs. Field said she ~~very~~ very much wanted to see you but was hesitant about whether you'd want to see her. So I (brave soul!) ~~so~~ tried to call you from the restaurant, ~~to act~~ as go-between. You weren't home, so we still don't know if you would have been amenable. But I wanted you to be aware of how she feels and to hope that you will see her if I do a "repeat performance" on the phone. I can't tell you how my heart was pounding as your phone rang!

Peace
Mary
