Dear Ms. Meagher:

I would like to thank you again for all the extremely useful comments and suggestions you have made on our chapters.

Up to now, whenever we have met, I have always presented you with questions or read you sentences and asked for verification. But Henry and I feel it would also be very important to us for you to actually read a chapter yourself and tell us what you think of it as a whole.

I am sending you the chapter on Ruby, but with my sincere apologies for the condition of the manuscript which is a result of numerous corrections and revisions. Due to the strictures imposed upon us by our research and legal departments, I would like to ask you, though, not to make any copies or show it to anyone. The chapter is still subject to changes -- which is why I don't have a clean copy to send you.

I would deeply appreciate it if you could let me know when you have finished reading it so that perhaps we could meet and discuss it over lunch at your convenience.

Thank you for your infinite patience and kindness,

Sincerely yours,

Sissi
