

March 24, 1986

Dear Harold,

Thanks for your second handwritten letter. It was a little hard to read but as I understand your comments about Hurt's book, I do agree with them. It is our misfortune to have colleagues who, however well-meaning and well-motivated (giving them the benefit of doubt) still manage to do considerable mischief and harm.

Roger particularly asked me to send you his very best regards, in addition to my own.

All the best,