Hi!

Please forgive me for writing this in such haste: they're keeping me pretty busy here.

I enjoyed our little chat the other day, even though it was awfully brief. I'll be sure to buy the forthcoming issue of Esquire.

Did you watch the three-hour TV program over the weekend? I'm sure you must have done. I found it very interesting. The man who wrote "White Wash" certainly seems to know his stuff, and Mark Lane is very articulate. I thought Cohen ~~was~~ something of an ass (simply because he was so inept in his attempts to defend the Commission's Report), and I couldn't bear the moderator. Anyway, the program was very interesting to me, and it probably did much to awaken the general public (or at least the non-reading public) to the issues over the Report.

II.

Enclosed is the address you wanted. If I can do anything else for you here, just say the word. Meanwhile, we'll keep the chess board up in case you decide you can fit a trip to DC into your tight schedule, after all.

I hope to see you soon.

Appreciatively,
