My dear Mrs. Oswald,

I am sorry that you have not found time to reply to my last letter and to clarify the mysterious abrupt disconnection when you last telephoned me. It would certainly disappoint and disturb me if I had reason to think that you had deliberately hung up on me in the middle of my explanation that despite the little time available to me I would make an effort to find a copy of American Heritage for you, as you requested.

In fact, I tried at several newsstands, without success, and I even had my niece go hunting for it, only to be told that this publication is available only by subscription and is not sold in individual copies. I trust that you were able to obtain the article you wanted from some other source.

Meanwhile, I have received an envelope from you which I must admit baffles me. It contains only a form letter sent out by The Minority of One to all its subscribers, to give them an opportunity to assist the publication financially so that it may continue its exceptionally valuable work, particularly on the issue of the fraudulent Warren Report and the deception foisted on the American people with respect to the assassination and questions of similar importance. As a subscriber to the magazine, I naturally received my own copy of the form letter. According to normal practice, I am sure that the letter went automatically to all persons on the regular mailing list, whether they were paying subscribers or receiving complimentary copies of the periodical. (The same budgetary problems which necessitated the letter of appeal of course prohibited any attempt to remove particular names from the mailing list.) Since you complained that you were not receiving copies of The Minority of One, Mr. Arnoni, when I mentioned it, said at once that he would see that you received copies regularly with his compliments; and I am sure that he is aware that your circumstances do not permit the magazine to anticipate a response to the appeal directed to regular subscribers. This will have been self-evident to a woman of your acuteness and analytical powers; so I assume it was some purpose which I have not grasped that led you to mail me the form letter without any message or explanation. I will be glad to be enlightened, should you wish to write, on this as well as on the telephone disconnect.

My book Accessories After The Fact: The Warren Commission, the Authorities, and the Report will be published on November 30, 1967, and you will receive a signed copy as soon as I have copies of the book, as you long ago requested and as I should have done in any case. Those of us who are committed to the destruction of the Warren Report should, of course, always be courteous and cooperative with each other, and with those who have been victims of personal injustice and unkindness. With my good wishes,
