Dear Sylvia,

I have just received your note about your father's death. I am grieved for you. It is never easy. Yet as you say, one must be thankful that he was spared that slow sad decline of the organism. I hope you yourself are feeling as well as you can under these circumstances.

I hope you will be glad to know that Ted Bloecher is greatly impressed by Accessories. I had asked him what he wanted for Christmas, and ten minutes after opening the book he said, "This is what I want." He will be here for one day this weekend and will get it then.

David
