Dear Miss Meagher:

I am delighted that the Scarecrow Press did the index to the Warren report. Surely it will come in handy now that there is a new proposal to go over the whole matter once again.

I wish I could be more encouraging about a submission here but I think I had best not be. That any book well researched and thoughtfully written, as I am sure yours would be, could fail to be lively in this field is not conceivable but I believe this Press would be better off eschewing this kind of publishing until our resources are sufficiently generous to exploit the book when we have it in hand. Our means for controversial promotion are limited not only by the nature of our imprint but by the extent of our resources.

Once again I think I ought to urge you to consider responsible commercial publishing for a book of this sort, no matter how careful and scholarly it is in its actual treatment.

Cordially,

William Sloane
