Dear John,

I was very pleased to receive your letter of yesterday and the enclosed copies of the July 6th Manhattan East, thank you. Joe Masi's article is fine and if any of your readers were taken in by the CBS propaganda quartet it should give them pause. I am sorry that I did not express my views on the ballistics tests more clearly --as you will have seen from my letter to CBS, their tests proved that no bullet was able to perform the entire sequence of feats required by the single-bullet theory, regardless of the condition in which the bullet emerged; and, second, even those bullets which petered out upon impact with or penetration of the simulated wrist could not be described or displayed by CBS, from which one can only infer that none of the test bullets emerged in a condition resembling the stretcher bullet.

There is one factual error in the article which is really a CBS error--the remarks attributed to Dr. Enos in column 3 of Joe's article and in the CBS transcript of Part II (page 18 paragraph 3) were actually remarks made by Dr. Cyril H. Wecht.

Yes, Eric Sevareid's "contribution" made me realize the importance of always having a supply of dramamine on hand. Wasn't he supposedly a friend and admirer of the late assassinated President? Weren't Rather, Kronkite, et al? With such friends...

Cordially yours,
