EDITOR M. S. ARNONI

Dear Dr. O'Brien:

One reason for my being grateful to you is that you provided an opportunity for me to praise myself; I knew, of course, why I wanted you to review Sylvia Meagher's book. And I got precisely what I had hoped for. While doing justice to Accessories After the Fact, you have given us much more than a review, for you have surveyed and assessed the Assassination case and its political implications. Of course, you could not have written anything less significant even if you wanted to, for, well, such happens to be your mind.

I would be remiss in my editorial duty if I let my gratitude deflect me from once more expressing the hopeful confidence that your first contribution to our pages will have many successors.

Again, thank you.

Sincerely,

M. S. Arnoni
