Dear Mrs. Meagher,

If you are not the New York author described by this month's Ramparts as one of the "scholars of the Warren Report," please forgive my disturbing you. If you are that Sylvia Meagher, however, I would like to invite you to speak to our group concerning your interest in the Commission's work.

We are the wives of graduate students and faculty members and, I believe, would provide an open-minded and enthralled audience. Our afternoon and evening sections meet jointly on Monday evening, February 13, at 8:30 in the Grace Dodge Room of Teachers College at 525 West 120th Street. The importance of your topic almost demands this combined meeting, but if the February date is impossible for you, perhaps you could come on the afternoon of Wednesday, April 19. Although we cannot offer an honorarium, we do have funds for reimbursing travel expenses.

Please feel free to select whichever segment of your concern you would most enjoy talking about. I'll be anxious to hear from you, and I do hope your schedule -- and your inclinations -- will allow you to join us on one of these dates.

Sincerely,

Earline B. Hefferlin
