

(The apologists for the Warren Report as a rule take a position) which is characterised by three organically connected qualities: refusal to deal with an argument on its own merits, a cavalier attitude toward ascertainable facts, and attempts to discredit by invective. Those are ~~not~~ the qualities not of the ~~man~~ intellectual (or the independent critic) but of the demagogue.

From "Truth and Power" by

Hans J. Morgenthau

The New Republic, 11/26/66