Dear Ms. Burstein,

You will remember that before and during the interview at my apartment I explained to you why it would be most undesirable for you to mention in the current issue my connection with the World Health Organization. You readily agreed to accommodate me on that point and to use the phrase "an international health organization linked with the United Nations".

In the light of your assurances, I was very disappointed to see that you did not honour your promise to me and that the story in the current issue does identify me as an official of the WHO. This is certain to cause me considerable embarrassment with my employers.

I have to express my regret at the way this matter was handled.

Yours sincerely,
