Dear John,

Your telegram arrived at 8:50 p.m. last night. Was slipped under my door, I don't know by whom.

After you left I checked the volumes for descriptions of the presidential car. A re-reading of the testimony corroborated my recollection that no part of the car was bullet-proof or armored. See testimony of J. Edgar Hoover in V pages 107, 117; also Dillon in V and Kellerman in II.

I was delighted to meet you yesterday and I hope we will remain in touch. I was greatly impressed by the work you have done and would regard it as a real misfortune if it does not come before the public in due course and become part of the historical record. With all good wishes,

Sincerely yours,
