WASHINGTON, June 10 (UPI) —President Ford created the Rockefeller commission on Jan. 4 "to determine whether the C.I.A. has exceeded its statutory authority" after newspaper articles alleged it had engaged in massive secret and illegal domestic operations.

Members of the commission, appointed by Mr. Ford, are as follows:

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller.
John T. Connor, Secretary of Commerce in the Johnson Administration, air combat intelligence officer in the Marines in World War II and now chairman of the Allied Chemical Corporation.

C. Douglas Dillon, Treasury Secretary in the Kennedy and Johnson Administrations and previously Ambassador to France and Under Secretary of State, now a managing director of Dillon, Read & Co., New York.

Erwin N. Griswold, Solicitor General in the Johnson Administration and previously a Harvard law professor, now with a Washington law firm.

Lane Kirkland, secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations since 1969, and a licensed deck officer aboard merchant ships in his youth.

Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff from 1960 to 1962, and later the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's supreme allied commander, previously commander in chief of the Far East and United Nations commands, and in World War II a member of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's staff.

Ronald Reagan, Governor of California from 1966 to 1974 and formerly president of the Screen Actors Guild and a motion picture actor.

Edear F. Shannon, president of the University of Virginia from 1959 to 1974, now professor of English there.

The commission's executive director is David W. Belin, a Des Moines lawyer who served as assistant counsel on the Warren Commission, which investigated the assassination of John F. Kennedy.
