Warren Appeals to Police for moved to disarm critics of the Supreme Court's rulings on police methods with an appeal for unity among all law enforcement officials in the battle against crime.

Warren combined his solidarity proposal with a sharp attack on corrupt public officials and business men who deal for profit with racketeers.

The Chief Justice confronted many of his accusers-police chiefs and prosecutors from all parts of the nation-in delivering his talk at the National Conference on Crime Control.

Critics of the court have complained that its recent rulings unduly hamper the police in questioning suspects by imposing rigid standards on confessions and access to defense lawyers.

23

Washington, April 3 (CDN) | Warren made no direct refer- | he told the 700 police, prison, -Chief Justice Warren has ence to the controversial deci- prosecution and court officials sions. Instead, he pictured him- at the two-day meeting. self as a former prosecutor who once felt frustrated by rising crime rates in the 1920's. ing life and property safe and He was District Attorney of California's Alameda County then.

> And he criticized Criminal Court procedures, law schools, inadequately trained and underpaid police and political favoritism by prosecutors.

But his message was ecumenical rather than moralistic.

"There are so many deficiencies in every segment of our society that it would be better if we all took a look at the beam in our own eye rather than at recommendations of the Presithe mote in our neighbor's," Warren said.

to succeed is to stick together," political appointees.

"We must form a solid phalanx for the purposes of makwholesome for everyone, everywhere.

The Chief Justice received mild—but restrained—applause. He received a glowing introduction from Attorney General Ramsey Clark, who said:

"Because Earl Warren lives and serves, our lives are enriched with justice . . . as will be the lives of our children and children's children for years to come. I believe that."

Warren, endorsing the main dent's Crime Commission, said police should become "profes-"The one thing we must do sional specialists" and never

NEW YORK POST, MONDAY, APRIL 3, 1967

. Their pay should be raised to reflect their tremendously important service, he added.

He wrged state crime commissions to poke "into every dark corner" to disclose organized crime's influence and what must be done to get good law enforcement.

"We can no longer treat deepseated cancerous conditions only with the skills of dermatology," Warren said.