real investigative resources of its own accurately, the way it was provided had access but rather with the way and was therefore heavily dependent, the commission obtained, or, more analyzed the information to which it do not with the way the Commission account that has been put forth. years later, the only really coherent of duplicate Lee Harvey Oswalds or isn't forced to hypothesize a number theory to explain what happened in its information. issues has begun to surface—having to in those 26 volumes remains, eleven volved in the events and their investiactions of the thousands of persons insolute control over the thoughts and Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963-one that evidence, speculation and rumor that Commission's account of the evidence gation—has proved quite a different a diabolical command center with abmatter. had come before us. we published, in 26 volumes, the great variety of testimony, other easy; we knew it would be when without having bothered to read it are prepared to dismiss the report the report, and at how many people critical literature were discussed in "new" continue to be amazed at how many of the Warren Commission. And although it is voguish to say otherwise, f think we wrote a good report. The Commission, of course, lacked Recently, however, another set of For all its inevitable loose ends, the But devising a coherent and credible Attention-getting criticism has proved McLEAN, Va .--- I served on the staff discoveries that appear in 26 volumes, the that he acted alone in that event. There is no evidence that directed to the assassination of the President. he had accomplices or that he was involved in any conspiracy Oswald as the assassin of President Kennedy and indicates THE EVIDENCE reviewed above seemed common sense, that persons that time, to our collective sorrow, we have learned many things. We have learned, contrary to what once The explanation, I think, Is that this was 1964, not 1975. We were all more innocent a decade ago. Since in a matter like this? oblivious to the risks of reliance on investigative politics, have been so of it? How could anyone, no matter should not simply have been that suited to. And that simply seemed analysis, asking the right questions how Why, then, did we not make an issue structured as an investigative agency entirely of lawyers, we were not ing. With a staff comprised almost the existing agencies for information to be that. to them was what we were obviously and evaluating the alternative answers plausible alternative way of proceed investigative dependence to an extent, but there did not seem to be any of limited value. furnished against other information we checked the information we were existing investigative agencies. at least for leads, on the Government's but such cross-checking was obviously had from the same or other sources Eleven years later, it seems that Naturally we were troubled by this To the extent that we could, we inexperienced in matters of About the Evidence By John Hart Ely vigilance on the part of the agency disclose a suppression of nothing more sinister than evidence of inadequate or agencies concerned. reconstructed: I still cannot take ing they could all be learned, would Kennedy's assassination. agencies were involved in President seriously the notion that Government naiveté to ignore that possibility. the Warren Commission. In 1975, it holding significant information from sense they are not. with an on-again off-again sort of would take a person of unusual be led to think they are working for out by persons who are in no true sense "members" of those agencies and sometimes executed at relatively that other Federal agencies were withradical to take seriously the thought such agencies when in every official but rather independent contractors of substantial moment are planned agencies are not the monoliths we once thought they were; that schemes deeds of subordinates who seem of in high places will, at substantial risk I confess I personally am only partly low levels; that they may be carried little consequence. to themselves, cover up for the mis-I suspect that the facts, even assum-In 1964, one had to be a genuine We have learned that investigative identifies Lee

THE NEW YORK TIMES, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1975

simple reason that it went unexamined what it was and was not provided. Perhaps this is naive in itself: Perhaps there is no realistic possibility at the time. would not be a re-examination, for the Commission got Justice Earl Warren's.) That is why I credibility to match the late Chief first. Nor does a second analysis seem better a second time than they were the before ,us would be analyzed any was and was not to get. It seems to me unlikely that the data we had of what information others decided have always resisted suggestions that (I don't know who there is with likely to attain any broader credibility. the information it had from the issue how the Warren Commission analyzed the investigation be "reopened." important to distinguish the issue of But an investigation of how the But however that may be, it is its information, of

From the Warren Commission report

Harvey

39

them. But even that is something we that those in possession of the facts bearing on this issue will ever reveal provided) information. Every American recent disclosures and accusations, but is entitled to be angry about the gate the mechanisms by which the Commission was provided (or not why those of us who worked on the report should resist efforts to investiare entitled to know. Certainly I can imagine no reason

22

÷ 8

John Hart Ely, who is general counsel of the United States Department of Transportation, wrote this article in his capacity as a private citizen.

of all.

perhaps our entitlement is the greatest

. . .

4

.