

ANOTHER OSWALD CONNECTION?

A typewritten letter, dated two weeks before the 1963 murder of John F. Kennedy and allegedly written by assassin Lee Harvey Oswald to the late Texas oil baron H.L. Hunt, has turned up as the focus of a new investigation by Justice Department and FBI experts. It was given to the government by an assassination "buff," but officials will divulge no other details of its origin. Ambiguously worded, it has Oswald referring to "marching orders" and suggests links between the two men, but Justice is "more than skeptical" about it. The fact that it has appeared only now, one source commented, prompts doubts that "it could be anything more than another example of the dementia that affects some people looking for a conspiracy." The FBI is reported to be checking to see whether the letter matches a typewriter that Oswald could have used.
