Dear Mr Sauvage,

Congratulations on "The Case Against Mr X" which is first-class, like the preceding two articles, in the opinion of everyone who has read it. I see from the letters to the editor that you, as well as Oswald, are now accused of smirking.

I have just finished correcting the proofs of my subject index. They seem to be working quite fast. It is less than four months since I first wrote to the publisher to say that I had compiled the index. In sending back the proof, I asked them to be sure to send you a review copy as soon as possible, to your home address. I hope it will not be much longer before it is ready. If you write a review, will it be for Le Figaro or for an American publication?

With best personal regards,

Sincerely yours,
