

Tomorrow in
WJT

Things they are a-stranging.

The debunkers of the Warren Report have, themselves, been debunked in a new book.

These scavengers and critics have gained fame and fortune by casting doubt on the official version of President Kennedy's assassination, and seeking to replace it with weird theories of their own.

One of them even says that JFK is still alive and made his most recent appearance at Truman Capote's masked ball.

Bob Considine tells the strange facts about these odd people.

And Henry J. Taylor reveals the strange ways in which some members of the Kennedy family, including Robert, spend money—allegedly public money.

While Norton Mockridge describes some unusual chance encounters between friends and relatives that prove strange things are happening.

Where it's happening
World Journal Tribune