

Mon. - Dec. 19

Dear Sylvia -

Just finished Penn Jones' book (?) - Vol. 1. The transition is almost non-existent - he assumes that everyone knows as much as he does.

His book convinced me, however, that I'm going to have to read the full WR. It appears that a great deal of contradiction and confusion was deliberately created - nearly every possible category was involved, i.e. - Ruby used as the matrix to involve many different "sets" of people. This was done for one of two reasons:

1. "they" knew that regardless of what happened "they" were safe and could therefore be careless without penalty later.

2. It was done to make the real situation impossible to define.

It thus appears that only a link-out on the part of a first party or a link-out on the part of a researcher will pay this open. I have faint hope for the latter because the expose' has lost its power to produce action. If only Ruby would open up! Wow! —

Good luck and good cheer.

Sincerely,

Maryant