

November 20, 1970

Dear Sylvia:

As the anniversary of that fateful date is again at hand, and as the years continue to roll away without any real answers to the how and why of it, a bigger mystery has come to over-shadow those surrounding the original event:

Why did not and have not the Kennedy family applied their inside positions and great resources to revealing the truth?

In other words, if we with our puny investigations can be so confident that the official report was rotten, how can the Kennedy clan not really know what were the actual motives and methods behind the Killing? And, knowing, why did they not act at the time and, at least, react since then?

Do you possibly have an entree to anyone in the family who might be ready to tell it like it was?

Did you read the article in the August 16, 1970, National Enquirer by Richard E. Sprague? If not, I'll be glad to send you a copy. Is anyone else still working?

Best wishes,

Margaret Simmons

1107 Lytle Lane
Kerrville, Texas 78028

Replied by Vand 11/28/70