

16 June 1965

Dear Mr. Stamm,

You will be glad to know that, according to a recent visitor to Dallas, there is no difficulty in gaining access to the Depository. Apparently Roy Truly is conducting guided tours, right up to THE window, feeling very pleased with himself. The only precaution necessary is to present oneself as a curiosity-seeker and to conceal any intelligent knowledge of the case or views on the official conclusions.

I have tried your phone once or twice, without reply. Perhaps you will give me a ring one evening--I am almost always in. Kind personal regards,

Hastily,