INTRODUCTION

by Russell Stetler

The assassination of President John F. Kennedy has produced an unusual paradox. On the one hand, the public has demonstrably thirsted for answers and consistently displayed a healthy skepticism toward some inadequate proposals to explain the mystery of this unsolved murder. Public demands on this question could not be ignored, and in a decade and a half there have been no less than four official investigations which have addressed widespread doubts and suspicions. All told, more than forty volumes of official reports, hearings, exhibits, and findings have been published.

On the other hand, it is only an infinitesimal section of the public that has even perused these forty-odd volumes. Of the four official reports which purport to summarize the mass of evidence, only two have been widely available as commercial paperbacks. A citizen who wanted to know exactly what Senators Richard Schweiker and Gary Hart concluded in their subcommittee investigation of the JFK murder might not know what to ask for at the local Government Printing Office bookshop. Who could be expected to know that this dramatic little report goes by the ponderous title, Book V, Final Report of the Select Committee to Study Government Operations with Respect to Intelligence Activities, United States Senate?

In short, Government investigations of the Kennedy assassination have turned up what can literally be called a wealth of information--millions of dollars worth of legwork and paperwork--to satisfy private citizens' craving for answers. A significant fraction of the information has been published. But the manner of publication (or, in some cases, non-publication) has hardly been calculated to encourage private citizens to delve seriously into the mystery on their own. In fact, it has hardly been calculated to encourage on-going investigation by federal employees officially charged with this duty.

An obscure FBI Airtel of August 16, 1966, makes the point perfectly. It was addressed to the FBI's Director, J. Edgar Hoover, from the Dallas office. Not surprisingly, the Dallas office of the FBI had had to follow up some leads in the Kennedy assassination; not surprisingly, putting together the Letterhead Memorandum that accompanied this particular Airtel required a great deal of work. Some poor FBI agent had to go all through the Warren Report trying to check small details. The author of the Airtel recognized that this would not be the last time that the FBI would be called upon to look into this case. But he had discovered, from the usual reliable sources, that in faraway New York lay an invaluable tool for the performance of these duties--an index! The FBI's prose cannot be imitated:

To locate the necessary material to compile the enclosed LHM required extensive review of the report of the President's Commission on the assassination of President Kennedy; and it is recognized that in the future, it will be necessary to perform numerous other research projects of similar nature. In this regard, it is noted, as set out in Dallas LHM, dated 8/9/66, captioned as above, that PENN JONES, JR., Editor, "Midlothian Mirror," Midlothian, Texas, mentioned that a SYLVIA MARR has compiled an index on the testimony and exhibits contained in the President's Commission on the Assassination of President Kennedy Report and Hearings, which index has been printed by the Scarecrow Press of New York. PENN remarked that this is an excellent index for reference purposes.

The Bureau is requested to furnish one copy of the MARR index to the Dallas Office for future use in conducting research regarding captioned matter.

The FBI Airtel is a modest and misspelled tribute to Sylvia Meagher's monumental labor--a subject index to the Warren Commission's twenty-six volumes of evidence. To the FBI agents in Dallas--who at least were doing their research on company time--the thought of plowing through thousands of pages of unindexed reference material was indeed daunting. Should we not pause to imagine how intimidating such work looked to spare-time researchers, that first generation of Warren Commission critics? Sylvia Meagher's index to the volumes not only enabled many researchers to get to work, pushed them over the first hurdle, so to speak; her efforts also provided a model of scholarly rigor and selfless personal dedication which has only grown more stunning with the passage of time.

The Warren Commission's failure to provide an index to its twenty-six volumes--if only for the future use of the FBI--was inexcusable. An index would have cost the taxpayers some money, to be sure; but the sum could not have approached one-half of one per-cent of what the Warren Commission had already spent. The long-term saving might have been measured in the time that the FBI could have saved in checking out future leads and rumors. The best that can be said in defense of the Commission is that it never dreamed that its volumes would receive such intense scrutiny over the years.

This argument turns inside out, however, when applied to subsequent investigations. Congressional investigations could not expect their evidence to escape the scrutiny to which the Warren Commission's evidence was subjected. Decisions which limited the accessibility of their evidence--like the continuing failure to provide indices--were, if not cynically intentional, at least taken with a conscious understanding of the consequences. The Schweiker-Hart Senate subcommittee held no public hearings, provided no index to its slender but fascinating report, and made none of its evidence public. The House Select Committee on Assassinations did hold public hearings and did publish fourteen volumes of supporting material; but neither its report nor the supporting volumes contain any index.

Once again, it was left for selfless private citizens--Sylvia Meagher and Gary Owens--to perform a task of essential scholarship that an official body did not see fit to provide despite its budget in excess of five and a half million dollars. The House Select Committee, in fact, specifically urged the Justice Department to pursue the investigation further. Can one seriously imagine the Justice Department staff making much headway in the fourteen-volume labyrinth without the guideposts which Meagher and Owens have provided so promptly and competently in this Master Index?

Researchers like Meagher and Owens have received little public recognition, and indeed they and other serious critics of official findings have often been lumped with irresponsible sensationalists in disparaging comments from the established media. How many times have we heard it asserted that speculation and conspiracy theories lead to lucrative book contracts and lecture tours? How ironically this image of the assassination-profitier contrasts with the reality: few of the serious researchers can ever hope to receive even nominal financial compensation for the years of painstaking labor they have contributed to the effort to break open this case.

No piece of the JFK puzzle would make any sense without the guiding intelligence supplied from the beginning by a few critics like Sylvia Meagher who catalogued what was known and enabled others to match new pieces with old. The importance of such a simple research tool as an index can hardly be exaggerated. To face the forty-odd volumes of data without indices would be an experience of quintessential frustration --as frustrating as, to drive the point home, being in Washington without a phone book.

Index has a double meaning. It can signify alphabetized listings of references, but it can also mean an emblem or sign. In this latter sense, the work of Sylvia Meagher and Gary Owens in dissecting the volumes of the House Select Committee is an index of our time. It is a sign that there is still research to be done, and that there is still hope that it will be done. What an extraordinary accomplishment: that something as inherently dull as an alphabetical list can communicate such optimism to kindred spirits!

EXPLANATORY NOTE

There have been two major official investigations of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy on November 22, 1963.^{1/} The first was that of the Presidential commission known as the Warren Commission, which published its Report and twenty-six volumes of hearings and exhibits in 1964. The second was that of the House Select Committee on Assassinations, which in 1976-1978 re-examined the Kennedy assassination and in 1979 published a Report and fourteen volumes of hearings and appendices.^{2/}

This volume provides indexes to the combined forty-two volumes of the House Select Committee and the Warren Commission. It is arranged in several discrete sections described below.

^{1/} Two investigative bodies, the President's Commission on CIA Activities Within the United States (The Rockefeller Commission) in 1975, and the Senate Select Committee to Study Governmental Operations with Respect to Intelligence Activities (The Church Committee) in 1976, examined only selected areas relating to the assassination.

^{2/} The House Select Committee also investigated the assassination of Martin Luther King, Jr., on which it issued a Report and supporting volumes. It is to be hoped that indexes to those volumes will be prepared in future in order to facilitate the work of researchers and investigators.

PART I. THE INVESTIGATION OF THE HOUSE SELECT COMMITTEE ON ASSASSINATIONS

Section 1: Individual Indexes

This section provides individual indexes to the Report of the House Select Committee, the five volumes of transcripts of the public Hearings, the seven volumes of appendices, and two volumes on legislative and administrative reform consisting of a Hearings volume and an appendix. These individual indexes are provided for those who wish to work with any single volume in the series.

Section 2: Subject Index

This section presents a comprehensive subject index, giving for each heading and sub-heading all citations to the Report, Hearings, and Appendices. A complete list of related Exhibits can be found in the Report of the House Select Committee, Appendix VII-B, pages 574-583.

Given the nature of the material related to them, the names of John F. Kennedy, Lee Harvey Oswald, and Jack Ruby have been placed in this section.

Symbols of volumes are as follows:

Report	R
Hearings and Appendices	I-XII
Hearings on Legislative and Administrative Reform	L/R I
Appendix to Hearings on Legislative and Administrative Reform	L/R II

Section 3: Name Index

This section presents a comprehensive name index, giving for each name and name sub-heading citations to the Report, Hearings, and Appendices. As noted, references to John F. Kennedy, Lee Harvey Oswald, and Jack Ruby are located in the Subject Index.

Section 4: Key to Names

This section presents a Key to the comprehensive name index, classifying the names according to identity and role in thirty-eight categories. A further explanatory note will be found at the beginning of Section 4.

PART II. SUBJECT INDEX TO THE WARREN REPORT AND THE HEARINGS AND EXHIBITS

This part reprints the 1966 Subject Index to the Warren Report and the Hearings and Exhibits which has long been out-of-print and available only in xerographic edition on special order. It is republished in this volume (in slightly amended form) after a canvass of researchers, who urged that it be re-issued, and in order to consolidate maximum information in a single research tool. The Subject Index includes its own explanatory note and explanation of symbols.

Acknowledgements

We wish to thank David Hawkins of Montreal for his help in identifying un-named photographic exhibits. We are especially grateful to the following students at Huron College, London, Ontario who assisted in compiling the Name Index of Part I: Bill Acres, Judy Aitken, Jeff Ball, Kate Brown, Sara Collins, Paul Elsley, Susan Feaver, Wendy Gamble, Harold Ginn, Kate MacGregor, Catharina McDonald, Susan McDonald, Catherine McKay, Janet McMurtry, Rebecca McTaggart, Joyce Minielly, Sheila Katherine Mulligan, John Nicholls, David Osbourne, Dana Porter, Susan Puiras, Darlene Ricker, Marianne Robertson, Thomas D. Shannon Jr., L.G. Stokes, Richard Walters, and Barbara Winterton. We are grateful as well to Huron College for the financial and technical assistance it provided.

Special thanks go also to Jeff Goldberg and Paul L. Hoch for generous assistance and encouragement.

KEY TO NAMES

The designation of names under particular categories is not perjorative or accusatory. Under "Organized Crime" there are names not only of underworld figures but of innocent persons mentioned in the context of organized crime, including individuals murdered by mobsters.

The lists are not exhaustive but include names of persons mentioned in the volumes who are known to fall into particular categories. For example, "Dealey Plaza Witnesses" does not provide a complete roster of witnesses to the assassination but gives the names of the witnesses mentioned in the HSCA Report and supporting volumes.

Some cross-referencing has been done. For example, associates of Ruby known to be connected to organized crime are listed under both headings.
