

It is noteworthy that the Commission originally planned to hear Mrs. Bledsoe but that in the end she was merely deposed by a Commission lawyer. But since they did hear Markham personally, perhaps Bledsoe's incoherence and malice would not have caused the Commission to doubt her credibility any more than it doubted Markham's.