

2/2/72

Dear Mr. Tamm,

At 11:20 a.m. this morning I found out the following situation: things I promised you would be there was no set time for it. In fact, however, I must have had those exhibits, I had earlier expected an effort to attach to the papers I will file.

What I received for Exhibit 1, 2 pp.; Exhibit 2, 1 p.; Exhibit 3, 15 pp.

As far as exhibits to not only on complete pages, I would appreciate full and unaltered copies of both as soon as possible. As we have only one printing until a day, so also to a have one on original. I will take this into account to mail it as soon as I can reach you as soon as possible. There is no "special delivery" in the country, so the only way in which these can reach me as all promptly is by sending them promptly.

Your papers have made the notations eliminated by no sending a complete copies relevant. I should also like to be able to read these notations.

I am confident that you realize the serious ~~problem~~ ^{situation} long delay in dumping on me to which I must respond appears upon me. It will be impossible for me to make full response within the time I have, which, unfortunately, when I talked to you, you did not expect to be with any accuracy at all. In addition, the typing available to me is quite limited. The part of what I will file to which these exhibits relate is already typed and still not possible for me to get it either as retyped. Your failure to provide these papers as you promised on January 13 and your failure to meet that in answer to my first request left me no alternative within my capabilities, time allowance and the very limited facilities I have. Together with the rather considerable extent of irrelevances I will have to address, otherwise the Court will not be able to evaluate them, this means a considerable addition to the length of what I must file. In turn, this is more than just expensive for me. It means a burden upon the Court that cannot but be prejudicial to my interests. Furthermore, this makes representation inevitable. I cannot imagine a judge not finding this unpleasant or that you are and were unaware of it.

If, as now seems likely, my health will not improve I should not drive to Washington. I will file what I have completed on the day last day I have. Otherwise, I will mail that. In either event, I will want an extension of time long enough to permit the retyping of what by then cannot be retyped. I promise you will join in asking this for me. For so long of work and the time I have to get permit my representation of what I will have drafted, but I hope to have everything drafted by then and, if you desire it as evidence of good faith on my part, I will bring it with me and want it to remain permit you to review it.

These procedures will make it impossible for me to make extra to fee of those things you already have, but I will provide copies of anything you do not. If this is not satisfactory to you, please let me know.

Sincerely,

Charles Rosenberg
