

10/6/71

Dear Dick (SM, HR),

If I make an addition based on the panel report (past paragraph, p. 11) on the distribution of fine fragments in the head, what I earlier wrote seems to mean that Morgan really told you nothing new, in essence, I think the best points are on pages 66 or 69. If I am to do this without adding a page to this chapter, which I desire to avoid, by rough count, in remaking the pages, there will be 15-17 lines, including the extra line between paragraphs. Each line has about 70 characters.

HR: when I looked at this page again and saw how that 6.4 frag radiates from it, I am so ashamed that even in haste I did not notice it and its very obvious significance!
Sylvia

Because of a stupid carelessness in my rush yesterday, to get to DC as early as possible, when I mailed both earlier parts of PM to you, I forgot to add Special Handling, which carries books as first class once they are in the mail. Thus it will probably take several extra days to reach you. I'm sorry.

If I haven't told you, I've made fairly significant deletions on the Wash Post, Clark (usually switching to the department), all on Foreman rather than leave the cracks I believe more than warranted in (I had gotten the same information from a local radiologist on the scapula and years ago on the nagle from a buff engineer, whose chart is fascinating.

If you see any typos or dropped letters, many of which I've caught, just a conspicuous mark, like in red, will catch my eye. It can be in the margin and I'll examine the line with care.

It is my plan for many reasons and what I regard as necessities to undertake to copyright the new last part as soon as I can get the money for xeroxing after my wife has completed the typing, before she reads it for errors and corrects them. Or, before I post those she has caught. The handling along can interfere with the sticking of small corrections. This is what I think accounts for some of the dropped letters.

In order to get this done, I'm having to get up too early again. 4 a.m. today. But I had to go to DC all day yesterday, have someone coming for most of today, and the federal attorney from Baltimore is due here Friday to begin, belatedly, an attempt to negotiate an out-of-court settlement on our long-delayed (never by me) second suit for the aviation damage to out farming and us.

I also included a copy of PM I. I didn't know if you'd want to refer to it. I had only the smaller size pages of what was III. Sorry.

And thanks,
