Dear Mrs Meagher:

I couldn't resist sending you this enclosure.

The indicated passage so "novelistically" catches the amorality of the man and his coldly poetic grasp of the electorate.

I find no release in the "I told them so" attitude even now as the information from L.A. suggests a glibly return of Dallas.

Indeed, the "plot" of the three assassinations abounds in those coincidences, character reappearances, and gross improbabilities so recurred in DeLoach-letters.

Hope you are having a wonderful vacation.

Do send me The Texas Article if published.

You will never be forgiven
by the "critics" for you have ideologically sinned and have proven them wrong.

No greater "treason"
exists.

Sincerely,
