RONALD FISHER, Supervisor, Dallas County Auditors Office, Dallas County Records Building, Dallas, Texas, residence 4007 Flamingo Drive, Mesquite, Texas, advised as follows:

On November 22, 1963, employees of the Auditors Office had been permitted to take an extended lunch hour and to leave work a bit early in order that they might be afforded an opportunity to see President KENNEDY and the motorcade. He left the office at about 11:30 A.M. and had lunch with a fellow employee, ROBERT EDWARDS, and after finishing lunch at about 11:45 A.M., he went to the northeast corner of Main and Houston Streets, where he was to meet EDWARDS, who had left him following lunch for an errand. When EDWARDS met him at Main and Houston, they decided to go to the southwest corner of Elm and Houston for a better viewing point, this location being directly across from the Texas Book Depository Building.

Several minutes before the Presidential motorcade turned onto Houston Avenue, EDWARDS punched him slightly and said words to the effect, "Look at that fellow in the window. I wonder what he is hiding from." This person in the window was located in the far right hand side corner window of the sixth floor, and could be seen by him from the neck up. He believed this man to be a white man, in his late twenties, wearing an open-neck shirt, light in color. He was fair complexioned and had a high forehead and light hair. He noticed this man never moved during the entire minute or two he and EDWARDS were staring at him and he appeared to be standing in an awkward position, leaning forward, but not leaning out the window. He did not think he could identify the man he had seen in the window, and he saw no gun, or any object, but the man and many boxes in the window.

Shortly after the President's car had passed his position, he heard several shots, evenly spaced, with what he thought three or four seconds between each shot. He thought the first shot was firecracker, but following report of the second, he was reasonably sure it was rifle fire, based on the sound. He did not know LEE HARVEY OSWALD or JACK RUBY by name, description, or photograph.
