Dear Harold:

I enclose the Martindale- Hubbell that is current at the Lou. Bar library. If you need me to look at the old ones, they will have to be retrieved from Uof L's attic, which I will be glad if you need it. The schools are by numerical code.

I'll get your sisters some copies. I have not sent Dave or Dennis any yet, because I need to send them some other stuff too. I made all you reluctant Weisbergs get out there for pictures because I figured you all had not got together very often with niéces and all. I thought they came out well, and also that the guys would like a picture with the students and teacher. But I knew you all would like the pics of all the Weisbergs in one place. One of my few regrets is that I didn't take pictures of all my buddies in high school and college and law school, the years pass so fast and at least I have many pics of my dad in front of fish and racecars and tractors. The three themes of my life! I could use some nice pictures of me on the cross country team, when I was thin.

David Halberstam is going to speak here soon. I am joining the Filson Club, local history society which I just found out has Sen. Cooper's papers, that did not make it to the Archive. Don't know if Halberstam has an opinion on the assassination.

Did you or Wrone ever contact Arthur Schlesinger? I would like to hear him speak sometime.

Guess I should go back to work. You are my typing practice! Only advice I ever took from my dad was to ~~take~~ typing. Hope you like the vacation video. May have to write a nut book to pay for my next vacation! Perhaps prove that Oswald acted alone. Like Posner or Jim Moore. Except that I am convinced that a good book, like yours, could be a blockbuster. I really feel America is ready for a common sense book that could explain Lee Oswald, who remains a mystery to the public and I guess even to you. And I think you are correct, and I wish you were not, that the autopsy is the key to the case. As you know a good autopsy would have been as important to the prosecution as the defense-but not in this case.

Hope you are having a pretty fall, pics to follow, I remain

Bill
