

When "il gets the copying machine going again I'll make you a copy of one of my favorite FBI reports on me.

Also, I think it is time to end all these nasty stories about the FBI not reading, repeated again just today by Sanford Ungar in the Outlook section of the Wx Post.

This should let you know that at the very least they read and practise Orwell.

Besides, you skeptics should realize that the Director is always right. Even when he is wrong he is right and this proves it. By merely saying it.

Just because there was no tree of Houston Street does not mean that the Director was wrong in saying there was a tree on Houston Street.

If she says there was a tree on Houston Street, for the FBI there has to have been a tree on Houston Street.

They found it on Elm Street.

This made the Director's testimony "accurate."

And if M.A.Jones had had to go all the way to Kalamazoo to find a tree on Houston Street, do you for a minute think M.A.Jones would not have been up to it?

Tradition.

And one of the best FBI ways of brushing aside all other unanswerables.

Best for the top brass who received this and the lower brass who originated it.

Hoover was right about never making a left turn. From Houston into Elm it was left.

Anyway the tree that grows in Brooklyn is still safe.
