

The implications of Veciana's charge concerning fabrication of evidence, at a time when the Warren Commission was faced with untangling the Mexico City allegation, are serious. they become even more so when coupled with his further allegations concerning the activity of "Maurice Bishop", and with the strong probability that unknown CIA personnel lost or destroyed surveillance material which could have established for sure whether the real Oswald visited the embassies. It remains, therefore, troubling that Congress' Assassinations Committee left Veciana's allegations insufficiently investigated, and unresolved. Two vital questions remain. Is Antonio Veciana tellin the truth at all ? And if he was handled by an American intelligence officer using the cover name 'Bishop', what was that officer's true identity ?
