Dear Al,

Enclosed is a draft of the piece on the new Army training. It is a bit longer than you wanted to include all that I thought you might want. You can cut it. Under separate cover I'm returning the pix, captions and INS ms. I have sent a copt to the captain and if there are any factual inaccuracies, etc., he'll notify you.

Also, if there are any other picture available, Lt. Herman of the Army BPR Pictorial Section will send them to you. I asked him to rush them today. I asked particularly for pix of the Ft. Knox Trainasium and of any special courses that the air corps might use.

I'll write you tonight about the other things I hope to accomplish in this full, rainy day.

By the way, I ran accross what I think will be a swell Army Air Corps story. Briefly, it is the special types of planes they have developed for their special types of combat training. They have, for instance, a plane for training navigators in which they take them out and loose them and say now come back; special planes to train bomber personnel to work as crews, etc. I'm assured there is good stuff and good pictures available. Let me know right away if you are interested. We might thus arrange an exclusive.

Yours

Harold Weisberg
