Dear Harold:

I received some stuff today from Miss McKelvey, and in acknowledging the letter, added a request for a few more details. (A carbon copy of this letter is enclosed.) In the event that you call her, stress the angles I've mentioned.

What I want to do is supply those women readers who want training with information that such training is available, and, more important, with details about how they can get training, and where.

Don't forget a lead article for the second issue.

It's too bad you couldn't see me in the city yesterday, but I know you were pretty busy.

Kindest regards.

Sincerely yours,

Al Whyman
