Dear Mr. Weisberg:

I was thrilled beyond description to receive your letter. It will be kept with your books for my son and grandchildren to peruse years from now. A sincere "thank you" for your personal note.

Enclosed you will find my order for two additional books. You are selling yourself short as I had a bookstore trace the three books I now own and I paid $35.00 each for them. So Mr. Weisberg - you are a bargain.

I am now in the process of reading "Post-Mortem" and find myself overwhelmed with your facts. It gratifies me that Arlen Specter is exactly what I imagined him to be - a first-rate scoundrel. I found the "killer instinct" of Arlen Specter in the Hill/Thomas hearing and his obvious dislike of Senator Kennedy to be downright ugly. Both Senator Specter and former President Gerald Ford profited by their tenure on the Warren Commission. I have no respect for either man.

I agree with you about Oliver Stone's interpretation of the assassination but it did make another generation do some thinking as I have had several of my former students (who knew of my interest in JFK) ask me what I thought. I told them not to rely on Stone but do some research on their own.

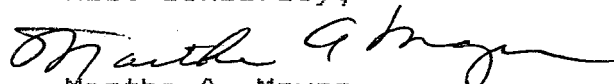

I personally believe that the key lies in Tippet's slaying - something doesn't make sense there at all. (Just a woman's intuition). I have read so much (good and bad) that I have to put it all aside every once in a while just to clear my thoughts.

I do not want to be a bother - but are there any definitive authors that you feel comfortable with their contributions? I have approximately 45 books on just the assassination itself and I certainly would like to be objective in my observations.

Mr. Weisberg, please forgive my presumption that you will have the time or the inclination to answer my questions. I will certainly understand if you choose not to.

Thank you again for your letter. You have made all my years of collecting worth every second.

Most sincerely,

Martha A. Moyer
