Dear Mr. Weisberg,

I have spoken with you a couple of times by phone and have been meaning to order more books.

I have moved from North Carolina to Colorado in the past month. It is interesting that I found "Postmortem" in the Tattered Book Store, a bookstore here in Denver, when I visited a couple of years ago.

The recent book Case Closed seems to me to be a superficial attempt to set up straw men and knock them down. Also, Dan Rather's CBS special a couple of nights ago, and the Frontline piece of last week on Oswald seemed to go out of their way to avoid some basic questions about the so-called magic bullet. Both used Posner as a kind of expert and only paid passing attention to those who disagree with the official Oswald-did-it-alone line.

Now that Bill Clinton has publicly stated his satisfaction that Oswald did it alone, I suppose many will write off the possibility of any official inquiry ever taking place again.

If you would be so kind, please drop me a note on your thoughts about the book concluded on the CBS or Frontline shows, if you saw them.

Thanks so much for your tireless and
Thankless efforts, Mr. Weiskopf -

Sincerely,
David Neal
