Dear Mr. Weisburg:

I have enclosed a check for $102.70 which should cover all seven books you described to me on the phone. I plan to read them all in numerical order as you suggested.

Thank you for spending your time answering my questions and dispelling some of my misconceptions about the case. I can't help feeling "used" by some of the "experts" who produce a never ending stream of books and videos all described as the definitive source. It was a breath of enlightenment to hear your assessment for the prospects of solving the case.

I realize you aren't feeling well and must stay close to home. However it would mean a great deal to me to visit with you personally for a couple of hours.

You of course would pick a time and a place and I will try not to be a bother to you. In other words, I'll leave when you say. I'm not writing any book or planning any commercial use of any information, I just want to be able to better separate the reality from the bull shit which is becoming harder all the time. You are the only person I feel can do this for me. I will compensate you if that is needed and will cover all my own expenses.

If you feel you can't meet me, maybe you could steer me to someone else you trust. I've read enough to have lots of questions that need to be discussed one on one.

Please don't think me too inconsiderate for this request because my only intention is to learn from the one who I've come to realize is the true expert on this tragedy.

Thanks again for your time and consideration. I hope you feel better soon.

Sincerely,
Doug Lawrence
