Dear Mr. Helbye,

I would appreciate it very much if your library did have all my books and I do thank you for wanting them to.

I also appreciate the two enclosed papers. I'll read them when I've some free time.

One movie on Peletier was produced by a friend of mine. He'd been the assistant producer and he finished the job up. I do not recall the title. He did the only really good documentary on the JFK assassination, "Reasonable Doubt." His name is Gerard Selby and that cassette is in the stores.

While I have not followed the Peletier case closely I am in general familiar with it and it appears to be another of the so many miscarriages of justice we suffer.

As I think about it perhaps that movie is "Incident at Uglala." Perhaps the story will say. After I read this I'll send it to him.

I have some recollection of Harlan Cleveland when he was in the government but did not recall that he was a columnist. I'll be pleased if he is familiar with my work but I do not recall all those who got books from me nor all the bookstores that did in their areas.

People you'd not expect to be interested have been, as this story illustrates. Fred Fielding was a Nixon White House lawyer. He also was counsel to Reagan. A friend who was once at a gathering in his apartment saw a copy of Whitewash on his bookshelves.

I appreciate your interest, effort and kind comments and thank you for them all.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
