Dear Mr. Weisberg:

I have just completed reading your book rebutting Mr. Posner's, having read it for an understanding of where the "acted alone" faction was these days. I have always wondered about these crimes on that weekend in Dallas. Although I was only a first grader at that time, my recollections are very vivid and I find them quite at variance with Posner's presentation. One still reminds me of the difference between the truth as Posner sees it, and what I saw on television that Sunday morning.

Thus, as I watched the transfer of Oswald, I remember seeing a glint of recognition in his eyes, and the next moment, Ruby stepped into the lights and into history. I will never forget that glint, and how its significance was realized later, as a high school adolescent, I became interested in the events of those days and their repercussions.

I admit I am not a recognized expert on the subject. My interest has always been in the mystery of it all. As in any murder, I must say the mystery is always an attraction. In this case, however, we can only speculate as to how our lives as citizens of this country and those of the world might have been affected.

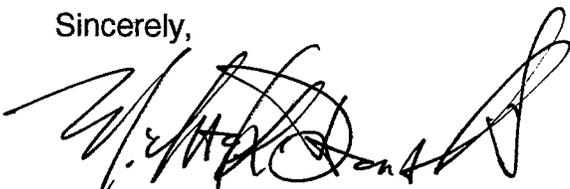

As I was reading your book, I could not help contemplating on the extent to which history was changed that day. Almost word for word of this observation I read later in your book, with which I am in total agreement. This case will never be closed.

We have witnessed such deception, both purposeful and accidental, and yet we now are so far from those days. Still the controversy continues.

The manner in which the "investigations" by the various agencies were conducted is an outrage, and those who believe the resulting "report" are participants in this deception, whether they are active, like Posner, or passive, like the minority of Americans who believe Oswald acted alone.

Thank you for your works, all of which I hope to add to my meager JFK library. Keep writing, as we as Americans have a right to hear all sides, a fact that Posner forgot.

Sincerely,
