

- The manual was the most helpful book. Dr. Weisburg was well worth the time. "Frame Up" was difficult to follow.
- Added to the understanding of the material. The only class in which the books were not a waste of money. Documents were especially helpful.
- I wish some of the copies were more legible.
- Films were great; really gave a feel for the time.
- All were interesting.

COMMENTS ON SUBJECT MATTER: (EG., SUGGESTIONS FOR OTHER APPROACHES TO COURSE, ETC.)

- Both JFK and King are good topics. Time spent on both seemed appropriate.
- Believe the subject matter was great. Having an opportunity to hear Weisberg in itself was worth the class.
- I think the approach is great; very interesting!
- This is a wonderful course and I truly wish that more courses like this one were offered. The subject matter is fascinating. One unless you can re enact the event or we could visit James Earl Ray.
- I suggest switching semester around. Do MLK first, then JFK. JFK's investigation had a lot of momentum. I kind of lost a little interesting when we got to MLK. I ran out of energy. Maybe MLK could be studied in a different format. Maybe group projects, presentations. The journals get old after # 7.
- The approach is fine the way it is, however, I would be better to spend more time in diagramed evidence of the King case.
- Please don't change the class too much. This has been my favorite class of my college career.
