Branney set bond at $10,000, which was posted. Judge Branney said he believed that Mr. Garrison's recommendation of $25,000 bond was excessive.

Mr. Shaw was booked, but not formally charged, for "conspiracy to commit murder." In Louisiana, a charge is not formal until it has been accepted by a district attorney.

Asked how long it would be before formal charges were filed, Mr. Gurvich said he did not know.

"Special cases take special handling," he said. "For all I know it could be several days." He said Mr. Shaw's lawyers were checking on the matter.
