Harry Bridges-Vorking

SAN FRANCISCO.—Why is Harry Bridges the target of powerful interests?

That question has been asked by many a person. And when they meet Bridges, those people are even more mysti-

For Harry Bridges is just a working stiff. He's just a guy the San Francisco local of the who's been chosen by his union ILA. membership to lead them; to take the lead in fighting their battles.

40 years old. He came to the policy and advised the ILA to United States in 1920, after some move over to the CIO. So was born years of beating about the world the International Longshoremen's as an ordinary seaman.

After sailing along the coast for several years in the merchant marine and the coast guard, Bridges settled in San Francisco and became a longshoreman.

Coming from Australia, where labor, at that time, had a much greater voice in government than here, Bridges was amazed at the conditions existing on the water-

In those days, before the 1934 Pacific coast waterfront strike, average earnings of longshoremen totaled $10.45 a week.

Stevedores worked under the shape-up system by which they had to hang around the docks.

Harry Bridges worked on the San Francisco waterfront and saw the advent of the NRA. Men joined the newly chartered International Longshoremen's Associa-

The employers fought this new surge of labor organization with spies, bribery, blacklisting, goon squads, discharge of militant union men.

When the 1934 strike broke, Harry Bridges was elected chairman of the strike committee and led the 1934 San Francisco general strike which firmly estab-

Bridges was elected president of sional labor spy,

When John L. Lewis led the demand for industrial unionism, Bridges, tall, lean, angular, is Bridges saw the wisdom of his and Warehousemen's Union.

Bridges soon was appointed California's CIO director.

The membership, confident by now that they had an unbuyable, incorruptible leader, has elected Bridges again and again as leader of the union.

Seek Ruin Detense

SAN FRANCISCO-On top of its other persecution of Harry Bridges, the prosecution seems determined to break the Bridges defense committee financially.

The rules provide that Bridges' attorneys must pay witnesses for the defense. They must not only have their transportation paid, but must be recompensed for time

The prosecution, however, apparently needs to pay only for mileage, board and fees "at rates not to exceed those usually allowed by the United States district court for the district in which the testimony is taken." (Immigration rules and regulations.)

This means that hostile witnesses who may be subpoenaed to appear by the defense can ask exhorbitant rates for testifying. lished unionism on the waterfront. In the first trial in 1939; this was When things settled down, done by Larry Loyle, a profes-

MRS. CAROL KING AUBREY GROSSMAN

Dig into trunk for records of FBI witnesses