

What is the situation
on the fountain pen?
Were you able to persuade that guy to really fix the pen? I believe you told me you took it to him again. If not, will you, please, just tell him I'd like very much to have it really fixed, that I have had no use of it for a couple of years.

That's one of the things I wouldn't remember today, though my hands were well-stained with the ink this one was dripping.

Another was the sign. Had you had a chance to take it to the slush people (Bard Bldg)? What did they say, if you did?

And another: I have bought a book of no earthly value save in my current occupation. Cost: $1.15. I think it is a top deduction.
Title: Company administration, by O had a letter from Alvin today. He reported that my cousin Gilbert went to the West Saturday. Everybody took it very hard, chiefly because he hung between life & death for so many years of his life.

She continues to ~~at the~~ ~~and~~ ~~and~~ tell me stories of Freddie, his habits & habits & his growth, which make my heart a bit sadder - but just a little bit. It needs no stimulation.

I have, as you know, been for forwarding mail. One thing I can't help noticing is that the most remote of the Bay to which I might be sent has had no recent ship news that I can see.

I feel a bit concerned about it. But the hope & belief that they are going to keep their promise make me feel better. Though I would have been more than delighted to have given the Trenton shipment today. Had I, I think it had been done this weekend - or at the very least there would have been no problem in us getting together for the treatment this succeeding month. So would have more than satisfied me to be that close. Yet it was awfully decent of them to think of putting me down. But if it cost us a month of the treatment I may be sorry to be closer. Anyway, Jim was more than impatient still, and will be until Jim settles when we can continue

With the treatment I've had,
I hope, be a little bit of a soldier. You know, I still can't persuade myself to feel other than badly about not doing anything to help win the war.

The weather outside is fluctuating. We had rain the 1st half of the day, hot sun for the afternoon, & now it is hot & oppressive, feeling like rain.

I'm going to the movie again tonight - I find it helps keep me from thinking about the things it doesn't do any good to think about.

That, of course, doesn't include you, though the latter half does.

Remember me to all

Love

Harold
