Dear Gary,

Jim Tague phoned last evening. I gather that you and he got along well and that he told you what he told me, that he had never spoken to Posner.

The Tagues and the Ferrells had never met. I brought them together for a fine meal that Mary and Buck insisted on taking the check for although Jim was better able to afford it. He was doing very well then. He sold fleets of vehicles, if he did not tell you, and in the entire country was either the fifth or the sixth most successful fleet-car salesman. Jim also told me that Buck is now in Parkland Hospital. Sad.

If neither of us told you, Jim provided an affidavit for me to use in C.A. 75-226, the second suit for the results of the scientific testing in the JFK case. He and Judy prepared the affidavit. She had been as I recall, like Mary, a legal secretary.

There were times the week I was with them they had trouble getting to use their own phone. That was the week James Earl Ray escaped from Brushy Mountain prison and was free for about three days. Because I'd been his investigator many reporters wanted to speak to me.

The Tagues then lived at Plano, a Dallas suburb. I gather they moved to a larger home after that.

Good work! Keep it up!

Harold
