Dear Les,

Although, as you know, I disagree with what Jack is going to say in his JFK assassination special, I've helped his production company as much as I could. I got a college student to search my files and make copies (432+) and sent them. Some of it appears to excite them a bit.

I never heard a word from the guy with the ancient jimcrackery, who was supposed to come here.

And after the first few phone calls none of the researchers mentioned another word about that junk.

I do hope this means it was abandoned.

Some of the coming exploitation of the 25th anniversary of the assassination is going to be bad, I suspect most of it from what I've heard.

And there is going to be pretty much.

I've had almost no inquiries for anything substantial.

Don't bother answering. This is just to inform you that to the best of my knowledge Jack has nothing to worry about based on what I wrote you about and that I've done what I could for him.

I've also told his production company to ask me if they have questions about fact or reasonableness. They have checked a few things so far. They'll have to have it all in the can pretty soon.

Best wishes,

Haskell
