By Dan Morgan

Washington Post Staff Writer A Senate subcommittee yesterday condemned the Army's "massive and unrestrained" surveillance of civilians and civilian political activity during the late 1960s.

The congressional report referred to practices that the says have been Pentagon authors wrote that government "continues to ignore the warning" of domestic spying dangers, and asserted that the only assurances they have that military intelligence files and personnel dossiers were actually destroyed came from the Army morale in West Ger-gather in the conducted a 3-72-year in there were plans for a control which conducted a 3-72-year in there were plans for a control which conducted a 3-72-year in there were plans for a control which conducted a 3-72-year in there were plans for a control which conducted a 3-72-year in there were plans for a control which conducted a 3-72-year in there were plans for a control which conducted a 3-72-year in there were plans for a control which conducted a 3-72-year in there were plans for a control which conducted a 3-72-year in there were plans for a control which conducted a 3-72-year in there were plans for a control which conducted a 3-72-year in there were plans for a control was in the conducted a 3-72-year in the every puterized central data bank. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D. Dissidents of all shades of not reveal the nature of the material, Symington said, however, that he was deeply concerned about the state of day to prohibit the Army from orded, the subcommittee really destroyed came from the Army morale in West Ger-gather in the conducted a 3-72-year in the conducted a 3-72-year in the conducted a 3-72-year in the conducted and said yesterday that he could be said yesterday t

New aspects of the military's overseas surveillance activities were disclosed last weekend. Documents which are now in Washington indicate that the Army's military intelligence program in West Germany is directed against American civilians and possibly against other foreigners in that country.

Robert Rivkin, an attorney for the Lawyers Military De fense Committee in Heidel-berg, said yesterday that he suspects the committee's of-fice there is under surveillance. The committee gives free legal aid to soldiers stationed in West Germany. Rivkin said that he believes that committee may have become a target of military intelligence agents because it "massive violation of the constitutional rights" of enlisted men in Europe.

According to newspaper stories that appeared last weekend, Army surveillance activities in West Germany have been directed against German church organizations and underground newspapers. Documents which were provided to the Lawyers Military Defense Committee in Washington in-dicate that wiretapping, direct observation and infiltration have been used. The Defense Department refused Monday

American agreements.

amounts of additional, infor- have made soldiers an easier tic espionage program in the mation concerning the Army's target for subversive propa- United States in the late espionage role have recently ganda from the outside. been turned over to the Sen-

Acting Committee Chairman on

According to congressional in Vietnam. Army officials installations, sources yesterday, substantial maintain that these factors At the hei

Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) which conducted a 31/2-year in- there were plans for a comto confirm or deny the stories, many as a result of such unre-but said that all counter-intel-ligence activities in Germany buying power of the dollar with background checks of are in accordance with German law and with German law and with German law and with German win" philosophy engen or is related to suspected dered in the Army by the war criminal conduct on military

At the height of the domes-1,500 1960s, plainclothes The report on Army domes- agents were collecting inforsharply curtailed since they ate Armed Services Committic surveillance was produced were disclosed. However, its tee from other Senate sources by the Senate Subcommittee placed in scores of data central committee and the senate sources by the Senate Subcommittee placed in scores of data central committee and the senate sources are successful. Constitutional Rights, ters around the country and