Bremer's Waldorf Stay

Continued from Page 1 after the FBI had thoroughly searched Bremer's 1968 Rambler. Neither the FBI nor the county police would say where in the car the pistol was found.

It also was learned yesterday that two months ago Bremer wrote a note to his Milwaukee Congressman urging him to cut the goddamned military spending" and to "get rid of the generals."

The note, providing one of the few known glimpses into Bremer's political lace at a shopping center in thinking, was in his own handwriting at the bottom of a questionnaire sent out in late February by Rep. Henry S. Reuss (D-Wis.). Reuss turned the questionaire over to the FBI yesterday.

According to a source who saw a copy of the questionnaire, Bremer told Reuss:

"Thank you for sending the questionnaire. It was a great idea. Cut the Goddamned military spending. If I rob a bank of $25,000, I would go to prison for 20 years. But if the generals do it, they don't. Get rid of the generals who spend $162 million for armored trucks instead of repairing them for $62 million. Thank you."

The source said the note was printed in a clearly adult hand in a space reserved for additional comments at the bottom of the questionnaire.

Bremer is being held in Baltimore County Jail on on$200,000 bond. He was arrested immediately following Monday's shooting of Wal-Laurel, Md.

In a telephone interview yesterday, Walter Surin, assistant manager of the Waldorf-Astoria, said Bremer had stayed there on April 7 and 8, a Friday and Saturday.

It was not known howw Bremer, who had been unemployed for some time before the assassination and apparently had been living in his car, could afford a night at the Waldorf. He was almost penniless when he was arrested Monday following the wounding of Wallace and three other persons in the assassination attempt.

A spokesman for Humphrey said he could not recall why the Senator did not stay at the Waldorf the night of April 7 as scheduled. The spokesman said Humphrey always stays at the Waldorf, and in the same room, when he is in New York.

Another development yesterday concerned the flyer for Sen. McGovern (D-S.D.) listed on the FBI's search warrant as one of the items found in Bremer's car. A reliable Justice Dept. official said yesterday the flyer had been found under the windshield.

The spokesman said the flyer had been placed there Monday by McGovern campaign workers, and that similar flyers had been placed on other cars at the Laurel shopping center that day. He emphasized that the flyer had no connection with the continuing investigation into Bremer's background.
